FINDINGS OF FACT AND STATEMENT OF REASONS FOR DETENTION

The AUSA proffers information that defendant has a history of fleeing court

02 03 orders and poses a risk of flight, asserting that a 2005 bench warrant from North Carolina 04remains outstanding, despite notice to the defendant, which he has eluded. The United States contends that numerous identification documents were seized during the search of defendants 05 06 residence, including fraudulent documents, birth certificates, national identification cards for 07 England and Japan, and a British passport application that had been filled out for the defendant, as well as numerous other blank applications for other foreign passports. The AUSA proffers 08 09 that during a search in 2007 pursuant to another case, the police found stacks of identification 10 documents for various individuals, including eleven tax returns of other persons. The AUSA further proffers that the defendant claimed to be an undercover federal agent when interviewed 11

2. Although the defendant has family ties to the area, he is unemployed and has no financial ties to the area.
